KEITH G. COLEMAN,

Petitioner,

v.

C. GARRETT,

Respondent.

CIVIL ACTION NO.: 2:19-cv-138

MAGISTRATE JUDGE'S REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

Petitioner Keith G. Coleman ("Coleman") filed a 28 U.S.C. § 2241 Petition. Doc. 1. For the following reasons, I RECOMMEND the Court DISMISS Coleman's Petition, DIRECT the Clerk of Court to CLOSE this case and enter the appropriate judgment of dismissal, and DENY Coleman leave to appeal in forma pauperis.¹ I DENY Coleman's Motion to Proceed in Forma Pauperis in this Court. Doc. 2.

¹ A "district court can only dismiss an action on its own motion as long as the procedure employed is fair. . . . To employ fair procedure, a district court must generally provide the plaintiff with notice of its intent to dismiss or an opportunity to respond." Tazoe v. Airbus S.A.S., 631 F.3d 1321, 1336 (11th Cir. 2011) (citations and internal quotation marks omitted). A magistrate judge's report and recommendation provides such notice and opportunity to respond. See Shivers v. Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers Local Union, 349, 262 F. App'x 121, 125, 127 (11th Cir. 2008) (indicating that a party has notice of a district court's intent to sua sponte grant summary judgment where a magistrate judge issues a report recommending the sua sponte granting of summary judgment); Anderson v. Dunbar Armored, Inc., 678 F. Supp. 2d 1280, 1296 (N.D. Ga. 2009) (noting that report and recommendation served as notice that claims would be sua sponte dismissed). This Report and Recommendation constitutes fair notice to Coleman that his suit is due to be dismissed. As indicated below, Coleman will have the opportunity to present his objections to this finding, and the presiding district judge will review de novo properly submitted objections. See 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1); Fed. R. Civ. P. 72; see also Glover v. Williams, No. 1:12-CV-3562, 2012 WL 5930633, at *1 (N.D. Ga. Oct. 18, 2012) (explaining that magistrate judge's report and recommendation constituted adequate notice and petitioner's opportunity to file objections provided a reasonable opportunity to respond).

BACKGROUND

Coleman was convicted in this Court in 1998, after a jury trial, of conspiracy to aid and abet the distribution of cocaine and attempts to aid and abet the distribution of cocaine, in violation of 21 U.S.C. § 846, and carrying a firearm during a drug trafficking offense, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(1). Doc. 1-1 at 2; United States v. Coleman, 4:97-cr-181 (S.D. Ga.) (“Crim. Case”), Doc. 238 at 2. Coleman was sentenced to life imprisonment on the conspiracy count and 480 months’ imprisonment as to each attempt count, to be served concurrently, and 60 months’ imprisonment on the firearm count, to be served consecutively (for a total sentence of life plus 60 months). Crim. Case, Doc. 238 at 3. Coleman filed a notice of appeal. Crim. Case, Doc. 241. The Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed Coleman’s convictions and sentences. United States v. Gorham, 98-8154 (11th Cir. Oct. 13, 1999).

Coleman filed his first 28 U.S.C. § 2255 motion to vacate, modify, or correct his sentence on February 28, 2000, alleging he was not convicted of a substantive offense, rendering his sentence constitutionally invalid. Crim. Case, Doc. 287. Coleman also alleged he could not be accused of attempting to aid and abet and he was actually innocent of charges not stated in the indictment. Id. at 4–5. This Court denied Coleman’s motion. Id., Docs. 322, 326. The Court granted Coleman’s motion for reconsideration based on the decision in Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466 (2000),² and re-referred the matter to the Magistrate Judge. Id., Doc. 342. The Court once again denied Coleman’s § 2255 motion. Id., Docs. 382, 386. Coleman filed a motion to dismiss, which the Court deemed a § 2255 motion and denied as an improper successive § 2255 motion. Id., Docs. 394, 397. Coleman filed two motions to preserve Booker-related issues,³ a motion to transfer his petition to the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals, and a motion for leave to file another § 2255 motion. Id., Docs. 422, 423, 426. The Court denied these motions, finding them to be successive § 2255 motions. Id., Doc. 430. Coleman then filed a motion to reduce his sentence under 18 U.S.C. § 3582 based on retroactive application of Sentencing Guidelines, which the Court denied because Coleman's convictions did not relate to crack cocaine. Id., Docs. 441, 442. Coleman then filed another § 2255 motion. Id., Doc. 450. This Court dismissed Coleman's motion as a successive attack on his conviction and sentence. Id., Docs. 451, 455.⁴ Coleman filed yet another § 2255 motion, which this Court again dismissed as successive. Id., Docs. 464, 465, 468. Coleman's sentence was later reduced upon his motion to 365 months' imprisonment on the conspiracy and attempt charges, to be served concurrently, plus 60 months' imprisonment on the firearm count, to be served consecutively. Id., Docs. 470, 472.

DISCUSSION

In his current Petition, Coleman avers he was charged and convicted of an "attempt," and the law does not criminalize a conspiracy to attempt. Doc. 1 at 7. Coleman contends the United States charging him with such an offense violates the separation of powers doctrine. Id. In addition, Coleman contends he was denied his right to counsel of his choice when his former trial attorney filed an appellate brief on his behalf. Id. at 8. Coleman is seeking his immediate release under 2255(e)'s saving clause because he "has no other forum to address his deprivation of liberty based upon an act the law does not make criminal, or to have the court revisit and resolve his constitutional claim(s) on the merits—pursuant to Circuit precedent—regarding the resolution of each error of which Petitioner complains.” Doc. 1-1 at 2–3.

³ In United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220 (2005), the United States Supreme Court determined a sentence cannot be enhanced based on facts found by a judge that were not admitted to by the defendant or found by the jury and the Sentencing Guidelines were advisory, rather than mandatory, in nature.

I. Whether Coleman Can Proceed Under § 2241

Coleman’s Petition should be dismissed because it is another successive attack on his federal conviction that can only be made in compliance with § 2255, and Coleman has not satisfied the requirements of § 2255. Coleman’s attempt to label his filing as a § 2241 Petition does not help. His Petition is a barred and should be dismissed.

Section 2241 habeas corpus petitions “are generally reserved for challenges to the execution of a sentence or the nature of confinement, not the validity of the sentence itself or the fact of confinement.” Vieux v. Warden, 616 F. App’x 891, 896 (11th Cir. 2015) (internal punctuation and citation omitted). Ordinarily, an action in which an individual seeks to collaterally attack “the validity of a federal sentence must be brought under § 2255,” in the district of conviction. 28 U.S.C. § 2255(a); Turner v. Warden Coleman FCI (Medium), 709 F.3d 1328, 1333 (11th Cir. 2013). To utilize § 2241 to attack the validity of a federal sentence or conviction, a petitioner must show that the remedy afforded under § 2255 is “inadequate or ineffective.” Taylor v. Warden, FCI Marianna, 557 F. App’x 911, 913 (11th Cir. 2014); Turner, 709 F.3d at 1333 (noting the petitioner bears the burden of establishing that the remedy under § 2255 was inadequate or ineffective to test the legality of his detention). A motion to vacate covers only challenges to the validity of a sentence, but the saving clause and a petition for a writ of habeas corpus cover challenges to the execution of a sentence. Cf. Antonelli v. Warden, U.S.P. Atlanta, 542 F.3d 1348, 1351 n.1 (11th Cir. 2008) (“It is well-settled that a § 2255 motion to vacate is a separate and distinct remedy from habeas corpus proper A prisoner in custody pursuant to a federal court judgment may proceed under §2241 only when he raises claims outside the scope of § 2255(a), that is, claims concerning execution of his sentence.”) (internal citations omitted)); United States v. Flores, 616 F.2d 840, 842 (5th Cir. 1980) (“[The prisoner’s] appropriate remedy is under § 2255, not 28 U.S.C. § 2241, since the alleged errors occurred at or prior to sentencing.”).

Section 2255(e) provides:

An application for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of a prisoner who is authorized to apply for relief by motion pursuant to this section, shall not be entertained if it appears that the applicant has failed to apply for relief, by motion, to the court which sentenced him, or that such court has denied him relief, unless it also appears that the remedy by motion is inadequate or ineffective to test the legality of his detention.

28 U.S. C. § 2255(e) (emphasis added). The above-emphasized portion of § 2255(e) is referred to as the “saving clause.” “Section 2255(e) makes clear that a motion to vacate is the exclusive mechanism for a federal prisoner to seek collateral relief unless he can satisfy” the saving clause. McCarthan v. Dir. of Goodwill Indus.-Suncoast, Inc., 851 F.3d 1076, 1081 (11th Cir. 2017).

To determine whether a prisoner satisfies the saving clause, a court need only analyze “whether the motion to vacate is an adequate procedure to test the prisoner’s claim.” Id. at 1086. To answer this question, a court should “ask whether the prisoner would have been permitted to bring that claim in a motion to vacate. In other words, a prisoner has a meaningful opportunity to test his claim whenever section 2255 can provide him a remedy.” Id. at 1086–87. In short, when reviewing a § 2241 petition, courts should look to whether the petitioner’s claim is of a kind that is “cognizable” under § 2255. If so, the petitioner cannot meet the “saving clause” and cannot proceed under § 2241. To be sure, “[t]he remedy [afforded] by [a § 2255] motion is not ineffective unless the procedure it provides is incapable of adjudicating the claim.” Id. at 1088. Whether the petitioner is entitled to relief under § 2255 is not relevant to the McCarthan test.

Rather, it is the “remedy” that must be “inadequate or ineffective” to trigger the saving clause, meaning “the available process—not substantive relief.” Id. at 1086.

The saving clause can be used in cases presenting “limited circumstances,” but Coleman does not present any of those circumstances through his instant Petition.⁵ Coleman is clearly challenging the validity of his conviction, which he admits. Doc. 1 at 6 (checking box for challenging his conviction). This is the type of claim that § 2255 encompasses. It is clear Coleman is not attacking the manner in which his sentence is being executed but his conviction. He would have been permitted to bring this type of claim in a motion to vacate, and § 2255 provided Coleman with an adequate procedure to test his claim. As outlined above, Coleman has invoked § 2255 and other post-conviction relief motions on several occasions.

Further, Coleman’s § 2255 remedy is not nullified within the meaning of the saving clause merely because he may not be able to overcome procedural requirements for relief. See McCarthan, 851 F.3d at 1086 (“[A] procedural bar might prevent relief, but that bar does not render the motion itself an ineffective or inadequate remedy.”). Thus, the fact that Coleman faces a successiveness bar against a successive § 2255 motion or a statute of limitations bar to bringing a § 2255 motion does not itself render a § 2255 motion inadequate or ineffective. Id.; Gilbert v. United States, 640 F.3d 1293, 1308 (11th Cir. 2011). Rather, “[w]hat makes the § 2255 proceeding ‘inadequate or ineffective’ for [a petitioner] is that he had no ‘genuine opportunity’ to raise his claim in the context of a § 2255 motion.” Zelaya v. Sec’y, Fla. Dep’t of Corr., 798 F.3d 1360, 1370 (11th Cir. 2015).

Section 2255 provided Coleman an “adequate procedure” to test his conviction and sentence before this Court. In fact, Coleman used the § 2255 mechanism in this Court, the District of his conviction, on previous occasions—raising some of the same claims he does here—but just was not successful. Consequently, Coleman cannot show that § 2255’s remedy is “inadequate or ineffective” to challenge his sentence and “cannot now use the saving clause to make [his] claim in a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.” McCarthan, 851 F.3d at 1099–1100. Because Coleman cannot satisfy the saving clause, his claim is procedurally barred, and the Court cannot reach the merits of his arguments.

II. Leave to Appeal in Forma Pauperis

The Court should also deny Coleman leave to appeal in forma pauperis. Though Coleman has not yet filed a notice of appeal, it would be appropriate to address that issue in the Court’s order of dismissal. See Fed. R. App. P. 24(a)(3) (trial court may certify that appeal is not taken in good faith “before or after the notice of appeal is filed”).

An appeal cannot be taken in forma pauperis if the trial court certifies, either before or after the notice of appeal is filed, that the appeal is not taken in good faith. 28 U.S.C. § 1915(a)(3); Fed. R. App. P. 24(a)(3). Good faith in this context must be judged by an objective standard. Busch v. County of Volusia, 189 F.R.D. 687, 691 (M.D. Fla. 1999). A party does not proceed in good faith when he seeks to advance a frivolous claim or argument. See Coppedge v. United States, 369 U.S. 438, 445 (1962). A claim or argument is frivolous when it appears the factual allegations are clearly baseless or the legal theories are indisputably meritless. Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 327 (1989); Carroll v. Gross, 984 F.2d 392, 393 (11th Cir. 1993). An in forma pauperis action is frivolous and not brought in good faith if it is “without arguable merit either in law or fact.” Napier v. Preslicka, 314 F.3d 528, 531 (11th Cir. 2002); see also Brown v. United States, Nos. 407CV085, 403CR001, 2009 WL 307872, at *1–2 (S.D. Ga. Feb. 9, 2009).

Based on the above analysis of Coleman’s Petition, there are no non-frivolous issues to raise on appeal, and an appeal would not be taken in good faith. Thus, the Court should DENY Coleman in forma pauperis status on appeal.

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, I RECOMMEND the Court DISMISS Coleman’s Petition, DIRECT the Clerk of Court to CLOSE this case and enter the appropriate judgment of dismissal, and DENY Coleman leave to appeal in forma pauperis. I DENY Coleman’s Motion to Proceed in Forma Pauperis in this Court. Doc. 2.

The Court directs any party seeking to object to this Report and Recommendation to file specific written objections within 14 days of the date on which this Report and Recommendation is entered. Any objections asserting that the undersigned failed to address any contention raised in the pleading must also be included. Petitioner further states that he just received two final orders, (1) dated: 2 July 2020 and the other dated 22 July 2020, and was not given an opportunity to respond to the magistrate's Report and Recommendation because a change in his address of which he put the this court on notice at least 6 weeks before he received the final order.
